

Conversation with Bill Haynes, Ashton Engineering & Terry Terry, Whatcom County Parks

11.9.21

I spoke with Bill Haynes of Ashton Engineering via Jesse Surowieck today.

From the conversation I have learned that the work he does and all those after him are determined by the entity that own and have responsibility for the project.

Any conversation about actual reality is a moot point for us to discuss or contemplate. The Burden of the project falls on, in this case, the Parks Department. Once they are behind the project all needed work to make our dream a reality is done by those who actually can make it come to fruition.

As a result of the former conversation I then called Terry and asked for clarification on how to proceed. She stated that we are on the right track with what she has provided already and encouraged us to set the end of January to be able to share what we think they are looking for. Important items would include aerial views, 360 presentation and well done graphics of what we would envision. Once we do that ground work, including as much info for the Who, what, Why, where, when it will then be ran with by the Parks department.

This from my perspective really lowers the time investment by all of us as our scope of work becomes pinpoint and achievable in a reasonable time.

Thanks for all your work everyone.

Chris Immer